Performance "The Master and Margarita" in the theater caught my eye while I was surfing the Net trying to find something worth my while. What appealed to me was charming actors and a gripping plot. But is that all there is to it?

In fact, the deeper you delve into the amazing performance in question, the more fascinated you are with the details that show up. For example, I was surprised by the number of beautiful decorations.

The key feature is that everything was very realistic. What was not up to scratch was the audience, because they were talking loudly all the time.

With all its amazing features and advantages "The Master and Margarita" will certainly come up to your expectations of what makes up a good performance. Don't take my word for it - I strongly recommend you go and check for yourself!
